“There is much that makes Criminal a reliable pleasure. Phoebe Judge is a gifted interviewer—adapting her style to suit the guest, prompting those who need it, and giving space to those that don’t.”

—Tara K. Menon

“Phoebe Judge is iconic. Thoroughly enjoy reading: great narratives, interviews, and reporting. As a reader, I really appreciate the width of topics covered- a fresh spin on differing types of “criminal” behaviors”

—William P. Butters

“The stories here are unique and interesting and include such great detail.”

—Glen Harcourt

In 1916,

two British soldiers were held captive in a remote prisoner-of-war camp. People said the camp was escape-proof. One day, one of the soldiers received a post-card from his aunt in England, suggesting they try experimenting with a Ouija board. When reports of ghosts started circulating around the camp, the two soldiers had an idea.

Criminal is an award-winning podcast about true crime. Stories of people who’ve done wrong, been wronged, or gotten caught somewhere in the middle. Criminal launched January of 2014, and new episodes come out weekly on Fridays. Criminal is one of the most popular podcasts in the world, and was named one of the Best Podcasts of 2023 by The New York Times. The show has been featured in “Best of” lists in Time, The Atlantic, Rolling Stone, Cosmopolitan, USA Today, Wired, and more. We travel around the country to interview people, and sometimes take the show on the road to tell stories live.

Helen Duncan

was a famous medium who travelled around Britain in the 1940s performing séances. She claimed to speak to the dead, and even produce physical manifestations of their spirits. But when Helen Duncan seemed to know wartime secrets about the whereabouts of military ships, like the sunken HMS Barham, she caught the attention of MI5 and notable psychic investigator Harry Price.
